Report to the Commission, July 1, 1987

Update on Triploid Grass Project

Charles Dugas

In December of 1985, there were about 3,000 pounds of the submerged weed coontail (Ceratophyllum demersum), per acre in Lac Bon Garcon near Bunkie. That same month, triploid grass carp were stocked at a rate of 10 fish per acre. In January of 1987, there were only about 600 pounds of coontail per acre - a reduction of 80%. In June of 1987, the biomass of coontail was approximately 900 lbs./acre.

The density of American lotus (Nelumbo lutea) has also been reduced in the lake. At this time, it is only conjecture as to whether the grass carp is responsible for this reduction of lotus.

In the 1-1/2 years since stocking, the fish have grown from less than a pound to an average of about 7 pounds. The fish still do not exhibit any sexual development. Normal (diploid) grass carp do not reach sexual maturity until about age 3 or 4 years.

Researchers in other states have predicted that the probability of a triploid grass carp reproducing in the wild is very minimal. We will not make any definite conclusions concerning this until the completion of the project.
